

Ecuador Webinar: Political Uncertainty and Outlook for Bondholders

Stuart Culverhouse

Tellimer's Chief Economist

Ramiro Blazquez

Head of Research and Strategy

The situation in Ecuador has deteriorated since the final review of the IMF's EFF in December 2022 amid tighter global financing conditions, lower oil prices, and natural disaster. Ecuador continues to grapple with a political crisis. President Lasso has dissolved the National Assembly and called for early elections. Uncertainty is building up on the country's political prospects, as the return of populism to power in the near term remains a sheer possibility.

Ramiro and Stuart will discuss some of these topics and more.

May 24th

3:00 PM London / 10:00 AM New York.
