

Argentina Webinar: Political and Economic Outlook after the PASO primaries

Stuart Culverhouse

Tellimer's Chief Economist

Ramiro Blazquez

Head of Research and Strategy

Amidst accelerating inflation and mounting dollar scarcity, Argentines will go to the polls to pick the next president. The PASO open primaries will shape the outlook for the 22 October general election. Interpreting the results is therefore critical to understand what is coming next and what kind of transition we can expect until the new government takes over on 10 December.

Ramiro and Stuart will discuss these topics and more.

August 16th
